Taking Northern Tanzania as a case study, we proposed a method to make timely and accurate land cover maps in data-sparse regions. It ensembles multiple existing land cover maps, human intelligence, and artificial intelligence. The proposed idea can fairly be applied to other scales or other data sources.